ALL SORTS.

—There was no stock board yesterday.

—Mr. Ben. Harris is paying Carson a short visit.

—Summerville S. C. had an earthquake Sunday morning.

—FOR SALE.—A first class square piano. Inquire at this office.

—Alf. Doten was in the city yesterday distributing the Banquet Pamphlet.

—There will be a great time at Glenbrook on the 4th. Fireworks, glass ball shooting, footraces etc.

—Mrs. Susan B. Glover of Bridgeport Conn., reached this city yesterday morning on a visit to the family of the Rev. Geo. R. Davis.

—Maxwell, alias Brooks, the murderer of Preller is to be hanged, the Supreme Court having refused to reverse the decision of the Court below.

—The Higgins who had such a dead thing last year with their horses got left last Saturday betting on Ben Ali. They dropped over $50,000. The turf is a grand place for amateurs to learn experience and they pay high for their tuition.

—The boys of the sagebrush of Nevada are a rare and jovial set. They are gathered from all quarters of the globe and seem to affiliate among themselves better than any set of men in the world. The honest miner with his dinner bucket, in hand greets the talented lawyer or the superintendent as his equal in every respect; but let a would be aristocrat or swell come among us and put on frills and he will find it the most disagreeable place under the canopy of heaven.—Pioche Record.

A Hit.

Arthur McEwen's roaring discipline of a meeting of fossils and stuffed animals in the Hall of the Academy of Sciences in San Francisco is a very rich thing and fills two columns of the Examiner. It represents a meeting in which all the old fossils, stuffed gorillas, etc. took part, making speeches, and having a general windy discussion.

The megatherium was chairman and the gorilla and ape made some red hot speeches. The whole thing is profusely illustrated, and Mac was fortunate enough to have an artist who caught the fun of the idea, and some of the cuts are excruciatingly good.

Cohn and the Base Ballers.

M. Cohn proposes to utilize the base ball players as an advertising medium. He pays them $250 to have his adv. printed on the breasts of their shirts while they make the tour of the State. Each player will have a different ad. This is a sort of insinuation that people who go to base ball games do not read newspapers.

Fair Warning.

The APPEAL never believed in using the columns of a paper for the collection of private debts. Of late however several parties have skipped out of Carson owing money to this paper. It has never been its policy to publish the shortcomings of such people as it generally results in an item that is quite extensively copied and which gives a man rather a black business eye. We give a fair warning that the next individual who slips away without settling will hear something drop, as forebears seem thrown away in such cases.

A TREED WILDCAT.

How Old Dobson was Prepared for the Animal.

Dobson the rancher, who lives out in the country, has always had a holy dislike for wildcats, coyotes and other mountain varmints that raid on chickens.

He has never seen the day when he did not have a regular arsenal of firearms in the house to be used in case of emergency.

He has a Winchester which shoots sixteen times without reloading, four or five shotguns; muzzle loader and breech, and any amount of six shooters and small pistols.

Dick, Bob and Billy all have guns and rifles for their own individual use, and it is hard to walk around Dobson's house in the night without stumbling over a gun, an old shot pouch or powder flask.

The other night Dobson's wife woke up and heard the dog yelping up a tree. It was as plain as day that the dog had treed a wildcat.

"I'll git up and blow his head off" was Dobbin's remark as he climbed out of bed.

In a few minutes Dobson was in the kitchen pawing about for a gun.

Pretty soon he called out. "I say Sarah, where the mischief are the shells?"

"Up on the top shelf."

At once a chorus of voices came from up stairs.

"Take the rifle."

"Take the breech loader."

"You can have my gun, dad."

"Why, thunderation, boys these shells won't fit."

"No Bill made a mistake and get No. twelves instead of tens."

"Where in thunder is the powder flask?"

"Hangin' up behind the door, dad."

Then a lot of youngsters came down stairs to help load a shotgun, all in their night clothes.

They start to load up Billy's jack rabbit exterminator with powder, and then discover that the old shot pouch is out in the barn, and that the ramrod is gone, no one knew where, but that the baby was playing with it a few days before.

They try all the shells but they are all too large for the breech loader.

By this time profanity is oozing out of the old man in streaks.

"Where in — is my six shooter?"

"Loaned it to old Jones last July to kill a cat, and he didn't bring it back."

"Where's the cartridges to my rifle? Dod blast it, where are they?"

"Little Maudie dropped them down the well yesterday."

They finally load up a gun but can't find any caps.

"Didn't I order percussion caps last week?"

"Billy got a box, but they was too small."

Meanwhile nine dogs about the ranch are filling the air with yelps and the clamor grows louder and louder. The excitement in the house grows apace. The old man swears like a pirate on the gallows and the wife is trying to smooth him down.

"John, don't get excited."

Everybody is rushing round and hunting for more firearms and pawing over the stock of old guns and pistols which make the place look like a junk shop.

Finally the old man goes out with a good reliable bean pole pokes the wildcat out of the tree and the dogs tear him up.

Then the rancher slams the table with his fist and vows by the eternal that he will take every gun in town in the morning before sunrise to be fixed and will load his wagon with ammunition, but the next day he does nothing of the kind.

Gloomy San Francisco Hotel Men

The hotel keepers are the most gloomy lot of business men to be found in San Francisco, owing to an unprecedented falling off in travel to this city. One month ago they were crowded for accommodations, and today they sigh for the traveler that does not come. Men who have been in the business since San Francisco was an infant city declare that there has been no time when the bottom has so thoroughly dropped out of their business.—Post.

—FOR SALE.—A large roomy residence in the Western part of the city. Fine location. Apply at this office.

A COSTLY OMISSION.

A very trifling mistake has caused the defeat of the most important measure passed this session by the Pennsylvania legislature. Governor Beaver has discovered that the general revenue bill does not contain the signature of the presiding officer of the senate. The measure passed both branches and was signed by the speaker of the house, but by an omission of some kind it did not reach the president of the senate for his signature. Therefore the Governor cannot sign it under the provisions of the constitution. The failure of this measure to become a law will benefit the corporations of the State to the amount of $1,000,000 a year, and this fact has started the rumor that underhand work has been done. The discovery will also necessitate the paring down of a large number of appropriations which are based on the estimated increase of revenue under the new law.

Prissto, Change!

The Pioche Record is responsible for the following: A young gentleman and lady, who were not known at the time to be engaged to be married, met one evening recently at a numerous and brilliant party given by a young lady. The lady, whose face is some what of a napiform, wore, as is now the fashion, a beauty spot on the upper lip, near the right corner of her mouth. It so happened, in the course of the evening, that the company went out of the room, leaving the young man and lady, above mentioned alone together. When the company returned they found to their surprise that the young man now had the black patch on his face, on the upper lip, but toward the left corner of his mouth. Strange things will never cease.

A Daft Mongolian.

A Chinaman was found wandering about in the sagebrush near Halleck who, it was found, was crazed from some unknown cause. He was brought down here this morning and placed in jail to await further action, the Judge and Dr. Meigs both being absent. He had a ticket to San Francisco which expired yesterday, and a $5 greenback. Constable McAdam took one of our resident Chinamen up to see him with the hope that something could be learned as to who he is, where he came from and where he was going, but it seems that he is not sufficiently rational to give the desired information. Our Chinaman gives the following report of the interview: "He talk like hell all time, no say nothing."—Elko Independent.

A Singular Occurrence.

A singular thing took place at the Reduction Works on Friday night that investigation has failed to solve. The main driving belt, which is 280 feet in length, composed of heavy rubber ten inches wide, had a strip four inches in width cut off it the entire length. Something probably got stuck to the pulley and caused the singular affair. It did not interfere with the running of the machinery, but the belt will, in all probability, have to be replaced, as it is now too weak to do the work.—Journal.

A machinist informs us that by running the two belts side by side they will work all right.
